I've started playing a game called "Ultrakill" recently. And it's awesome! The gameplay is wonderful!

So, there are a few impossible to miss characters. We have V1 - the robot we play as, V2 the second version but he's faster and has more protection, Gabriel one of the main characters, he's a judge of hell, and some others.

The plot is enormous, so I can't describe it whole. But I can say some words about it: a big war that ends with a death of humanity. People used blood-thirsty robots in it, such as V1. And when I said blood-thirsty - they are literally running on blood! So, with no blood left, V1 finds a way into hell, with a lot of bloody bucks around. The aim of the game is to travel deeper into hell and fighting bosses.

I would recommend the game for those, who like shooters, and a lot of weapons to choose from.

The game I am going to be reviewing is called "Borderlands 2".

It is a looter-shooter. It is a game where you seek for the best gear to tear through hordes of enemies with it.

The six main characters you can choose from are Gaige the mechromancer, Krieg the psycho, Salvador the berserker, ~~Richard~~ Axton the soldier, Zero the sniper and Maya the siren.

The plot is that on the planet Pandora there is an ancient "Vault" made by a dead race called Eridians. It is said that whoever opens this "Vault" becomes so powerful that he can conquer whole galaxy. Of course many people want to find that "Vault" and get its blessing. So the group of main characters called "Vault hunters" are arriving to Pandora to seek for this unknown treasure. There is an antagonist called Handsome Jack and he's one of the best villains in history but he dies in the end with the beast that was hiding in the "Vault".

The aim of the game is to just have fun. There are lots of different guns starting from ones that scream when you fire and ending with ones that you throw instead of reloading.

I would recommend this game for people who want to have a rest from our ^{life} world and to get into the world without ⁿⁿ manners but with lots of hilarious stories.

Charles Dickens once said: ~~that~~ "Procrastination is the thief of time, collar him." From my point of view, he meant that by avoidance of their responsibilities and desires, ^{people's} they stop the evolution of society. In ~~the~~ following articles I'm going to agree with ^{the given} his quotation.

Firstly, procrastination makes people hesitate, when they're willing to ^{complete} ~~complete~~ their tasks. For instance, a lot of my classmates have their dreams and plans for the future, but because ^{own} of their time-wasting attitude they are unlikely to make their wishes come true. By the time they start doing something, it will be ~~to late~~ ^{late}.

Secondly, only if you do something, if you don't sit in front of the television, you will be able to change what you want. Suffragets were fighting for women's rights to vote and be voted for decades. All of them suffered, thousands of them died because of governments ways of "making them normal". Thanks to them, women now have way more rights and power in life than before. They did not just look. They were fighting.

Summarising all ~~the~~ ^{statements}, I can say that Charles Dickens was right. ~~in every aspect~~ ^{It would not matter} from which angle we will look on his quotation, procrastination was, is and will be "the thief of time".

"Procrastination is the thief of time, collar him." - Charles Dickens. As for me, Charles Dickens, my favorite writer, was absolutely right. I think the author meant that procrastination is a time-wasting habit and ~~you~~ people ~~do~~ must not avoid it but have to "pet" it. Procrastination, I think, ~~and~~ can be bad, but ^{bc} also it can be good.

It's bad because you waste ^{bc} time, doing nothing and after that you are stressed ^{to} to do everything on time. Talking about my personal experience, I always ~~pro~~ hesitate to do something and after that I'm always in a hurry ^{to} to do it, it's ^{bc} pretty uncomfortable.

Your avoidance of your tasks also can be good. ^{For example,} you are time-wasting for the last moment, but ^{bc} after that you find out that the task you had ^{to} to do is cancelled! Good news and you aren't sad ^{bc} because you did nothing! I have ~~such~~ ^{such} story in my life. I ~~it~~ was procrastinating and avoiding my social science home task, next morning the classes was cancelled, I was happy ^{for} for my "time-wasting" habit.

Charles Dickens said that "Procrastination is the thief of time, collar him!". I understand his point of view like procrastination is a time-wasting process, and you should collar it in avoidance of wasting your time for some uselessly things.

I agree with author's point of view. In my personal opinion you should not postpone your goals - you must achieve them by working hard. The second reason is that if you will hesitate about something, you will waste your time for nothing. The last reason is that when you stay idle, you are being to think less about your job and other main things.

Now I want to give some examples to illustrate my reasons by using my personal experience and the experience of my friend. When I was 14, I was spending my time by playing computer games and walking with my friends. I really liked to waste my time. I didn't do any homework.

Then I decided to use my time for the progress of myself, and it was a good choice. I started to ~~take~~ read books and learn languages.

Another example is my friend Misha. He was a weak short guy that was wasting his time as he can. Everyone were laughing on him, after that he decided to go to gym. This was a right decision - his problems were gone.

As a conclusion I want to say that you should not postpone your goals and waste your time for nothing. Procrastination is an evil.
